

Construction Week's engineer of year award for AHEC employee

Al Hassan Engineering Company. (AHEC), Oman's leading Engineering, Procurement & Construction (EPC) recently announced that Safi ur Rahman - engineer' civil & water business Stream, has won the 'Engineer of the year' award at the third Construction Week Oman awards. The awards were presented at an event held at Hotel Grand Hyatt Muscat that recognises the very best of Oman's Construction industry. Rahman collected his award, in the presence of senior officials from the Government and private sectors, and leaders of relevant industry bodies.

Rahman has been recognised for his overall contribution to Al Hassan Engineering with regards to the roles played in different projects and has been praised for his demonstration of technical ability, commitment to the company and for excellent relationship management skills with customer and colleagues.

Dr Fahd Bakour, CEO, said, "Safi has proved his skills time and again in various projects that he has been involved with, primary among them has been the Saih Nihayda Depletion Compression (SNDC) project for PDO where he has been a key resource in project planning, execution and knowledge transfer. I am happy that his contribution has been recognized at a prestigious platform like Construction

Week and this award truly stands testimony to the level of expertise of Al Hassan's employees. We wish him all the very best for the future."